- 2006—2007 David Collins Studio, New York, NY
Junior Designer/Junior Project Manager
Project: The London Hotel, New York, NY
Designer and Junior Project Manager of the London Hotel, NYC, mid-level guest rooms, penthouse suites and health club. Scope of work: design concepts, concept presentations to client, documents for bid and construction, bid comparison and analysis, presentation to the client, construction administration to accommodate fast-paced construction schedule. Ten hours spent in the field each week with additional weekly site meetings, associated paperwork, processing of submittals and shop drawings.
- Project: The London Hotel, West Hollywood, CA
Part of the two person concept design team for the Hotel’s Red Door roof top spa. Along side the Project Manager, Craig Harvey, we determined the scope and client’s needs for the project, analyzed the existing space, designed floor plan options, researched and selected imagery and details to create a composite experiential overview of the potential space.
- 2005—2006 Cooper Robertson & Partners, New York, NY
Junior Designer
Project: Private Club, Antigua, West Indies
Large, confidential project in the West Indies that included 30, 24,000 sq. ft. houses, spa, hotel, marina and private aviation facility. Participated in designing schematics, space planning, materials selection. Designed and implemented many presentation and organizational templates.
- 2003—2005 Ned Jalbert Interior Design, Westborough, MA
Junior Designer/Junior Project Manager
Project: Private Residence, Montecito, CA
Worked on all levels of the design process, including design concepts, project management, client relations, research, spacial planning, material selections, construction documents, and on site installations. I designed many furniture pieces and textiles including a contemporary cashmere rug, dressing table, chaise, case goods, as well as an elaborate ID driven shoe closet. I was in charge of all final presentation sketches and watercolor perspectives for all of our clients.
